Overview:

Combating malnutrition is central to a country's ability to boost economic growth, advance health and development objectives, and realize many of the SDGs. This high-level breakfast briefing will examine the role of nutrition as a foundation for sustainable development and prosperity. At the event, the World Bank and R4D will launch the first in a series of costing and financing scenarios for reaching the global nutrition targets, specifically the target calling for a 40% reduction in child stunting.
